Under the policy for naming parks, buildings, or recreation facilities several factors are taken into consideration and among them are individuals or families who have been involved and committed to the community, maintaining names that represent the current and past cultural diversity of the community. In addition, public building, park and facility names should reflect both the current and past heritage and historical significance of the community that is now serviced and should incorporate the functionality of the building, park or facility by simply stating its purpose without further description.
