

NO-COST Energy and Water Assessments for Residents of Tracy

This summer, the City of Tracy is working with Rising Sun Energy Center's California Youth Energy Services (CYES) program to provide a limited number of Tracy residents with no-cost energy and water conservation services through a partnership with Pacific Gas and Electric Company* (PG&E).

CYES provides services to all community members regardless of income with a focus on serving hard-to-reach residents, including renters, low-to-moderate income households, and non-English speaking households. The program helps cities reach their Climate Action Plan targets and do their part to address California's drought.

Rising Sun has been providing no-cost energy and water conservation services throughout the Bay Area since 2000. Last year CYES expanded its services to the Central Valley. CYES trains and employs local youth ages 15 to 22 to become 'Energy Specialists' who serve their city's residents with Green House Calls (GHC).

At each Green House Call, Energy Specialists:

- ◆ perform an energy- and water-efficiency assessment
- ◆ offer tips on recycling and energy and water conservation
- ◆ perform a toilet leak detection test
- ◆ install energy-efficient lighting, water-efficient showerheads and faucet aerators

Green House Calls will begin June 30 and run through August 6 and are available on a first-come, first-served basis.
